The UN Secretary-General has renewed his call for Syria to provide "full and unfettered access" to a UN fact-finding mission to investigate allegations of the possible use of chemical weapons in the country.

In response to journalists' questions, a UN spokesperson says Ban Ki-moon has taken note of information from the United States authorities regarding chemical weapons in Syria.

Mr. Ban says while he takes the assessment seriously, the United Nations is not in a position to comment.

He says senior advisers at UN Headquarters have been in contact with the US authorities on the latest developments.
